"CLASSMATES."

The stage settings of Robert Edeson's success, "Classmates," a play of West Point cadet life which William Macauley is presenting on the road this season, are praised as among the most ideal achievements of the producer's art. Mr. Macauley is starred in the piece, which is booked to be given at the Colonial theater on Friday night, January 13.

1910-1911

We take this opportunity of thanking our friends for their patronage and the confidence expressed in this institution. In the passing of the year of nineteen ten we pass the first mile post, and we are very much pleased with the record made. We are proud of it.

So far as we have been able to learn from the records obtainable we have made the best record in the state for any Fifty Thousand Dollar State Bank, for its first year, our friends have made this possible.

We believe Nineteen Eleven holds greater opportunities and possibilities for us all, and we extend to the entire community our very best wishes.
